Comments Kevin Nolan, one of my favorite writers, wrote a fantastic article on autism and sports at one of my favorite web sites, his partner in crime, The NY Post. Nice job Kevin! Commenter Helen Thomas Location Manly, NSW Date and time February 26, 2012, 3:34PM Why do bullies attack a player or coach who is not even close to the ball?The bully is most likely full of himself and the high paycheque so he thinks he is entitled to pounce without any consequence. It is sad that this'sport' is not only enjoyed by a large segment of the population but loved by many. Hopefully the line will be drawn somewhere and the bully will not have the choice to take it any further. Commenter SR Location Sydney Date and time February 26, 2012, 3:40PM I thoroughly agree with SR, good sportsmanship is a fundamental part of the game - not to mention the fact that most big sporting events are publicised to the same 'market' as the game itself, and to behave badly while being cheered on at the ground is just plain wrong.

Commenter Ben Young Location Port Macquarie Date and time February 26, 2012, 3:51PM Respect the ground, respect the game, and get on with it! Commenter Brent Location Fremantle Date and time February 26, 2012, 4:13PM Shame on you Reds, shame on you reds!! A racist pig like you should be hung!! Reds, I hope you feel ashamed of yourself!!

Commenter Renee Location London Date and time February 26, 2012, 4:14PM Why is it always the NRL club that has to pay the price? I remember the Panthers fans hating most of the Sharks back when I used to get stuck at Penrith Airport until 3am. Commenter Bluey

What's New in the?

Q: JSX element that has no children I want to create a JSX element that represents the following: but only if there are no children. This is the code I use to check if there are any children: But it doesn't seem right because in this case the className of the element will be changed to some-class even if there are children. Is there an easy way to do that? Thanks! A: To answer the second part of your question as to how to do this as a concise way, use the conditional operator, like this: A: To expand on the answer from @Doug, there is a condition function that you can use. )?'some-class': 'some-other-class'} /> A: You can't just add JSX elements without children. You have to add a return. becomes . Deliberate Identify-Threat-And-Take actions to protect you. If a threat is identified, take protective actions. Administrative Actions are used to prevent the incident from occurring again, including removal of the affected user and/or accounts, educational awareness, and/or administrative controls such as server removals and mandatory patches. Do-not-Fix actions are used to correct an error of the type found or prevent recurrence of the problem. Mitigation or Recovery Actions are used to re-establish the proper working state of systems. Further Discussion An Incident Response Plan (IRP) is a written document that defines the incident response process. The IRP will state who will be involved in the process, how they will be contacted, what kind of actions may be initiated, how the plan will evolve over time and what will happen to the original IRP after the incident is successfully handled. The IRP should also specify the objectives of the action, which will help to determine which actions may be acceptable or required.
