VTube Studio is finally coming to Steam! VTube Studio is the tool of choice for any Live2D VTuber! With a wide variety of features, it has never been easier to connect with your viewers!! VTube Studio can be used directly with your webcam on any Windows PC or Mac. VTube Studio supports audio-based lipsync (requires microphone). Details can be found in the documentation. VTube Studio on Steam is free to use with all its features!! A "Remove Watermark" DLC exists that will remove the (very cute) watermark that would otherwise be shown when the webcam tracking is active. Using VTube Studio is really easy!! Load your own Live2D Cubism model, run the auto-setup, start the tracker and you're good to go. VTube Studio works well with OBS, Streamlabs or any other streaming software. VTube Studio comes with a few simple example models, but you obviously want to import your own models!! VTube Studio ONLY supports Live2D Cubism models, other formats like VRoid are not supported. No support for other formats is planned. If you ever get stuck, there's a complete documentation available as well as an active Discord community that's happy to help out new users! If you got any cool feature idea or suggestion, join our Discord and let us know, most features and improvements were suggested or inspired by user feedback. vttube2steamWhy I love doing triathlon Why I Love Triathlon After three years of not doing a single triathlon race, I picked up my running shoes and headed to Cargilfields for a 5K. I've wanted to do a 5K for a while. I was a bit nervous about running a 5K, but I was focused on just finishing the race and that was it. I ran this race twice now. Both times at the end of December. I went for a run, turned around and came home - to keep my walking legs warm. I started the year running twice a week and now I have been running four to five days a week. On January 22nd I headed off to Coupar Angus - my husband's country club for a sprint triathlon. This was also my first sprint triathlon. I was so
